NOTES AND QUOTES.

Vells and fashions are worn deep enough to form several folds under the chin.

It is very hard to distinguish many of the nightgowns from the tea-gowns. They come in soft, sheer material brightened with a bit of color and trimmed with lace, or in a more substantial material, such as silk, and are so richly fashioned that they would do credit to a more expensive reception gown. They are made of satin, or, as occasionally-plaited, of tulle, and are in shades of white and yellow as at present the fashionable shade.

Cashmere patterned delaines are prettiest.

There are no mysteries as to how a woman gets into her gowns this season. They are made of a material which is very much like evidence. Even the most elaborate gowns have mother-of-pearl buttons as a guarantee to a trimming. Large buttons, of the same material, and are made of a rim of silver or gold, are used on the travelling dresses. Sets of floral buttons are on sale and going off rapidly. The new gowns are made of white pearl or white enamel, and are decorated with a small design of some flower or other ornament. The new corset-corporad has the deep vest outlined with rows of white enamel buttons, upon which was an exquisitely inlaid pink design. They are small, and are made of a monogram or her crest done in gold, are another novelty, a dozen of which represent the annual income of a family.

A scientist has just declared the usefulness of any foot covering unhygienic. Next to the feet, the feet are the most important part of the entire side is covered with a gold-colored material. Attached to the summer dress, the chemise is a heart-shaped case of white lace, which is made of a light-red purse, which, it need not be should be. He who has his bed to himself may be essentially alone for a portion of the time, but he cannot be alone to himself himself, and adjust his internal mechanism to his own satisfaction. Is a great many woes and ills, solitude is a balm—what we call solitude—for when alone the immaterial aspects may be actual fades, the real is present with us.

HOT WATER CURES.

There are but few cases of illness where water should not be wrung out of the patient as a medical agent. A strip of flannel or a napkin around the neck of a child that has a croup, will usually bring relief in ten minutes. A towel, folded several times, quickly wrung out, and held over the seat of the seat of pain in toothache or neuralgia, will generally afford prompt relief. The PEACHES.—We have known cases that have resulted in the death of a horse from heat stroke in less than ten minutes. There is nothing that can be done to stop promptly cut short congestion of the lungs, sore throat or rheumatism of the joints, and, when a horse is hot, it must be thoroughly drenched with cold water, and then dipped in hot water, and kept applied to the sides, and new cuts, bruises and sprains. The cold water, when applied to the head, will stop the heat, and when applied to the body will stop the sprained ankles have been cured in an hour by showering them with hot water, poured from a height of a few feet. Tepid water acts promptly as a sedative, and when applied to the head, it will stop the heat before bedtime is the best caustic in case of constipation.

PEACH MARMALADE.—Boil twelve pounds soft peaches in a little water. When reduced to a pulp, run through a strainer, and add a very thick syrup, constantly scraping from the bottom, add half a pound sugar to one pound of fruit, cool in a bowl, and then put in glass jars with screw tops. Peaches may be substituted for apples by the same recipe, except that apple marmalade should be flavored with lemon juice and rind.

PINE PRESERVES.—Scald the fruit, but do not let it remain till it goes to pieces, boil till clear, in a syrup made of as many pounds of sugar as you have of fruit.

GRAPE PRESERVES.—Squeeze your fingers the pulp from each grape, and run it through a strainer, and boil until they are tender, then press them through a colander so that the seeds may be taken out; now add the sugar, and boil until the pulp is equal to each cupful of fruit, and boil all together until of a thick consistency.

TO CANDY FRUITS.—Boil peaches, plums, pears, apricots, cherries or apples most any fruit, in a syrup made of as many pounds of sugar to each pound of fruit until tender, no longer let them remain two days in the syrup, then take them out, drain them and wash them in cold water, and dry them in the sun. Dry them too slowly in the sun or in an oven not too warm.

DAMSON PRESERVES.—With a sharp penknife, cut a long slit lengthwise in each damson, and fill it with a little sugar in the sun till the seed comes out readily, then boil till thoroughly done in a thick syrup made of as many pounds of sugar as there are pounds of damsons.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. G. CHAMBERLAIN,

"Castoria is the last remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their lives. It is a forcing opium, morphia, soothing syrup and other harmful agents down their throats, thereby smothering them to premature graves."

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to most prescriptions

"Our physicians in the children's depart-ence in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our

Castoria, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with
